The Director of Central Intelligence

Washington, D.C. 20505

3 June 1988

The Vice President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Vice President:

Enclosed for your information is a copy of the Annual Report of the Director of Central Intelligence to the Congress for calendar year 1987. This is my first Annual Report as DCI and the twelfth such document prepared for the Congress since the mid-1970s, in keeping with Senate Resolution 400 and House Resolution 658.

25X1

The format of this year's report is similar to that used in recent years. Significant world events of the year are reviewed as a backdrop for a discussion of the Intelligence Community's contributions to the nation. The intention is to give the Congress a sense of the issues that the Community dealt with in the past year and the steps that it took to meet consumers' needs. Although for the most part the report looks back at 1987, it would be remiss if it did not look to the basic problems of the coming years as well. Thus, I have included a discussion in the report of significant shortfalls and problems that lie ahead.

25X1

I believe the report clearly indicates the return the nation gains on its intelligence investments. It also bespeaks the need for continued Congressional support to assure effective intelligence capabilities.

Respectfully yours,

William H. Webster
